

Dear friends,

As a Christian, I like what I've read in Aver magazine. Good job. You should do more to advertise it beyond the Muslim community.

I enjoy the magazine because of its positive tone re. being Canadian. I also appreciate your emphasis on being different in community. You stand up against secularism without belligerence. This is the Islam that will be listened to in Canada. You will become a voice to reckon with.

One suggestion: You should consider enlarging your fonts. The size of your fonts is just too small for comfortable reading. It gets to feel like work, while I like to read it during times of relaxation.

Oh, one more suggestion: How about a letter page that would include a conscious effort to get Christians and secularists to respond? That could become a wonderful forum for popular national on-going dialogue. I am already salivating!

Yours with great expectations,
Jan/John H. Boer, Vancouver

Note to reader of this online version of the letter: Aver was intended to become a popular Canadian Muslim magazine that unfortunately was short lived in 2006.
